R. P. WARING, Editor.

Thursday October 28, 1869.

There is considerable talk just now in Washington circles about an affaire d'amour between a certain young gentleman connected with one of the foreign legations here and a certain colored young lady, who is described as beautiful and attractive. The young gentleman, the story goes, became so completely bewitched that he escorted the lady to the public places, and was not only seen promenading with her on the streets, but even in her company at the theatre. The lady, it seems, bears so little trace of her African origin that unless very closely scanned she would pass for a white; hence the ease with which she gained admission to the theatre undetected. You have heard of the three colored gentlemen who smuggled themselves into the National theatre here a few weeks ago, and were compelled to leave on being discovered. Well, it turns out that the trio had another object in that visit to the theatre than the one generally assigned. They went there as much for the purpose of "spotting" the beautiful young colored lady in the company of her distinguished admirer as of testing their right to admission on a white equality. The young lady was there that very night and the circumstance became known to a great many respectable white ladies who were acquainted with the gentleman accompanying her. The next morning the affair was in the mouth of all the gossips, male and female, and the sensation that resulted was so unpleasant to the gentleman who constituted the hero of the scandal that he fled from this city to New York for protection. Altogether it is about the largest social scandal of the season.

Wash. Cor. N. Y. Herald.

The NEW TENNESSEE SENATOR—Cooper, the new senator, is a young talented, handsome, and popular man, an able lawyer and a member of the State Senate. Heretofore he has been considered as the most popular person in Tennessee save Andy himself. To add to Andrew's chagrin, a procession, hurriedly extemporized, passed his window hurrumphing for Cooper and twirling in the air such placards as "Gone Up, Old Boy," "Our Moses under Cloud," "Only Fifty-One," etc. His opponents, as a dernier resort, determined early this morning to go solidly for Cooper, and the result was that poor Andy was thrown when least he expected it.

A coal-hole in the sidewalk is a public nuisance, and the proprietor of a sidewalk coal-hole is responsible for damages to any person who may fall through it if the fall was not the result of the persons own negligence or folly. A jury in this city has just awarded $350 to a man who fell through a coal-hole, and in whose case the court delivered judgment involving the principle set forth above.—New York Tribune.

A dispatch from Nashville shows how ex-President Johnson was tricked out of the senatorship. It seems that on the day before the election Cooper's name was withdrawn as a rose to test Johnson's full strength. The Stokes men agreed to join in a vote for Mr. Cooper if Etheridge would withdraw and make Johnson's defeat certain. As a compromise man he was enabled to poll the required votes on the first ballot and beat the ex-President by four votes.

Secretary Boutwell has, upon the recommendation of Mr. Patton, collector of customs at Galveston, made fifteen changes in the Galveston custom house. These new appointees are nearly all colored men. One colored man, who was a candidate for the State Senate, is made chief of a department at a salary of $2,000.

The Ku Klux appear to have emigrated North. They are appearing almost daily in Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Indiana and other Northern States, executing the higher law, and carrying on matters generally with a high hand. Since their near approach, they appear to have lost their horrid aspect in the eyes of the Northern press.

THE COLUMBIA FRAY.—Yesterday morning while Mr. J. D. Kavanaugh (who holds an important office in the Grand Army of the Republic, and is also a clerk in the Executive Department,) was attending to his official duties, he was requested to walk down stairs, which he did, and upon reaching the first floor, was accosted by R. B. Elliott, (State Representative and Assistant Adjutant General) who proceeded to horsewhip Mr. K. severely. The cause assigned is an insulting note to Elliott's wife, which Mr. K. is charged with writing; but this he emphatically denies—asserting that he does not even know Elliott's wife. Elliott is a colored man, Phoenix.

EDITOR TIMES.—Dear Sir.—Allow me to inform you and the surrounding community, that the Memphis, El Paso and Pacific Railroad is no more; but it is the "Southern Trans. Continental Railroad" from Norfolk, Va., to San Diego, on the Pacific. Col. Fremont is President, fully endorsed by the Louisville Convention. About fifteen hundred hands have arrived (foreigners mostly) and we look for seven or eight hundred more in a few days. Everything is being pushed through vigorously. It will soon be the road of America. Our corps move across the Sulpher river in a few days. In haste. Very respectfully

Are Second Marriages Proper?

A LOVING WOMAN DENOUNCES THEM.

Custom tolerates this abominable social evil, if it does not approve it. It cannot do less, when the lax state of public morality makes divorces even not only possible, but easy of accomplishment. Marriage by many is no longer regarded as a divine institution, but simply an alliance to be entered into, and dissolved, at the caprices of folly, lust, or convenience.

There are but few persons comparatively, but that believe in the immortality of the soul; and that those who have gone before us to the spirit land will be recognized, and hold the same relation to us when we meet them there that they did here—therefore, to such a marriage for all eternity. A plurality of wives or husbands in the world to come, must excite the same horror which it does in all right minded persons when such a state of things is contemplated here. In this light I view it, and I cannot divest the idea from my mind that the contraction of more than one marriage by the same person is no less than a kind of polygamy.

How amazing and terrible it must be to a devoted and tender wife when separated from her partner in the halcyon days of their wedded life, after waiting many long years in the spirit land for the dear one left behind, to find perhaps two or three later wives of her husband sent to her before his arrival; when he at length comes, to have her claim disputed, or at least receive only a moiety of that love which her priority should claim as a whole. Aside from this there are other considerations connected with second marriages which are not less repelling.

First, marriages are usually contracted when youth, love, and romance cement the union with a tenderness and sacredness which no later period can approach. The human heart pours out its best and purest oblations upon a first union, and all other connections of the kind are in comparison only ridiculous burlesques upon the institution of marriage. The heart can never yield but to one the divine glow which distils the true elixir of wedded life. When this one is removed, the foundation is dried up in this world, and no rod wielded by a second love can again make it flow with its original abundance and sparkling purity.

How ridiculous, foolish, iniquitous then are marriages save the first! How abhorrent the bare idea of a connection of this kind must be to all such as are basking in the happy fruition of a first union! To think, for instance, at some future day, that a beloved wife or husband may be removed and others step into their places; at their boards to pass; at their firesides new faces to smile or frown upon them; the arms that embrace them and the kisses they receive to be bestowed by mercenary and selfish interlopers.

When death takes away a beloved wife or husband, the bereaved, instead of casting their eyes around for one to fill the place, should live on the memory of their loved ones; look upon the affliction as only temporary; bear the loss long ever in mind; shape every act as though their eyes were upon them; and as they proceed onward, nearing the goal, their love should be constantly increasing so to be fully prepared for that reunion which will be final and eternal.

The New York World says: Nearly all the parties connected with the late gold clique were members of the Union League Club, and the movement was originally concocted in that club house.

Car. Baltimore Gazette.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24, 1869.—Letter writers in the interest of the Administration at this point are despatching ostensible authorized statements to the effect that there are serious designs of ousting Butterfield from his important position of Sub-Treasurer at New York. From my information I am inclined to believe that all this feigned virtuous indignation is a mere tub thrown to the whale—that great senseless fish, the credulous public.

It will be remembered that Mr. Butterfield and Mr. Corbin, with all the members of the gold ring, were original subscribers to the great Enterprise in which General Grant drew all the capital prizes. The former accompanied Mr. A. T. Stewart upon the occasion of the handing over of the last instalment ($65,000 in payment for a house worth $35,000), and it will also be recollect that then and there the prospective Secretary of the Treasury did Mr. Butterfield the justice to recommend him as the pioneer in that great financial and political movement—that, in short, he was then and there represented as the man who, more than all others put together, had brought to the mill the coveted grist.

He will not be removed unless he chooses to offer himself up as the "scape-goat" for bigger fish, and from what is known of him it is thought he is not the man who will thus consent to be immolated without just and ample compensation. How is this to be guaranteed?

This matter of the complicity of the President with the nefarious operations of the Gold Ring, could never have assumed its present serious proportions from his mere miscellaneous intercourse with its leading members during the process of their incubation, nor yet from the mere fact of his close family connection with the arch-conspirator of the plot.

The American people are marvellously incredulous of believing corruption in high officials, and, moreover, have been "educated" for the past eight years into a laxity of morals, in respect to "great financial operations." Nothing short of the astounding antecedents of this Administration, in the matter of rewarding men with official positions of the highest character in recompence for "money had and received" on private account, (which the people, per force, must believe was the foundation of the organization of General Grant's Cabinet, so far as he had the power of forming it,) could have induced the now growing impression that in the recent gold "speculation" something is really "rotten in the State of Denmark."

I hear on all sides the "situation" of his Excellency deplored and pitied. This is at least this extenuation: The people (and General Grant among them) have been systematically taught that the only recognized offence in these days is disloyalty to the Radical party, and the only public virtue worth a straw is hatred of an unresisting people. President Johnson was offered a carte blanche to do as he pleased in every other respect if he only proved faithful to the instincts of the Radical organization. His successor had a right to suppose that the public offices and the public funds were at his disposal upon condition of mere adhesion to Radical dogmas. In respect to Mr. Butterfield, it is worse than ordinary hypocrisy to wall up the whites of Radical eyes. What has he done at the worst but "feather his own nest?" Has he not kept the faith? Does he not vehemently enough throw up his cap for negro supremacy and white disfranchisement? How has he travelled out of the beaten path of Radical financial moralists? With eighty millions of coin in his keeping (hoarded in compliance with Radical policy), was it to be expected that his "influence" would not be exerted in the line of his ambition? With the lights and example before him, was it not too much to suppose he would foolishly throw away his golden opportunity?

While newspapers (neutral and Radical) are at this moment turning their attention to the generalization incident to official changes on political account, the Administration is busily engaged in proscribing every man, Republican as well as Democratic, who do not walk the narrow chalk line prescribed by it. An official organ makes this announcement:

"It is stated that all men in Texas holding office under the Treasury Department, who favor the election of Hamilton, will be discharged by direction of the Secretary. The Collector of the port at Brownsville and numerous employees at the Custom-House in Galveston will be lopped off at once."

In the face of such announcements there are not found writing journals (neutral as well as Republican) who cry out for the enactment of Jenkins' bill and other measures, rendering permanent appointments thus made! This programme, in the event of Democratic success, would operate beautifully. I need only state the point!

Twenty-two millions six hundred and forty thousand two hundred and ninety-eight pounds of upland cotton, valued at $5,902,812, was exported from Charleston during the year ending September 30, 1869.

Moses Wearing vs Mayor etc, of Mobile, in error to the Supreme Court of Alabama.

The Plaintiff in error is a merchant of Mobile, and claims to be an importer of salt in that port; he complains that the city, under authority of the State law, seeks to impose upon him a tax on sales and a penalty on its non-payment, which he alleged was illegal; because in conflict with that clause in the Constitution of the U. S. which prohibits a State from laying any duties on imports and exports.

Phillip Phillips, appeared for Mobile

Ex-Judge Jno. A. Campbell of Ala. for Wearing.

The Supreme Court in an opinion delivered to-day, held that under laws of the United States regulating imports, and under the circumstances of the case, the Plaintiff in error, was not the importer of the salt but the mere purchaser from the importer and the fact he sold in unbroken packages did not exempt him from State taxation; he had not partakes of the risks of the voyage but was the mere purchaser of goods to arrive.

The owner of the ship on whose account the salt was laden and who had complied with the law, in the matter of discharging by lighters, was deemed to be the importer. The judgment was affirmed.

17 Fine Chinchilla Over Coats at H. & B. Emanuel's

Yesterday, not an item was stirring. The day bright, beautiful and crisp, sent the blood coursing through the veins with healthful rapidity. Many farmers were in town, and much cotton in the market. We saw more wagons loaded with family-supplies leaving the city than we have before noticed this season. As the cold weather sets in earnest, so does the sale of heavy goods increase. Our goodly city is growing, and now, it is apprehended there will be at the end of the year, more persons wishing to rent than there will be tenements unoccupied.

In many portions of the city, houses are being built, but rents will keep up, and we fear will continue to do so. We must have a building and loan association. These have been inaugurated in many portions of the State with marked success. Co-operation is the order of the day, and combinations must be formed here to erect factories of various descriptions, if we intend to make Charlotte the place that her position entitles her to be. The South must manufacture her own cotton, and there is no place more suited to such enterprises than our own "Queen City." We would like for several of our capitalists to visit Atlanta and investigate the causes which have contributed so much to the growth of that city.

Furniture of all kinds will continue to be repaired at the old stand opposite the City Clock, and Cane Seat Chairs rebotomed as good as new by competent workmen. Charlotte, Oct. 28, '69. 3m
